NetworkNews*, Summer Edition Now Available

Friday, July 4, 2003 – The Summer 2003 edition of NetworkNews is a particularly colourful one. There are pictures galore – of CPRN people and events, from dialogues and workshops to weddings and honourary degrees.

We feature articles on CPRN's unprecedented national citizens' dialogue on the future of Canada, an urban perspective on social cohesion, a blueprint for improving nursing workplaces, and measuring success in Canada's public education system.

There's an update on CPRN's Fresh Ideas Campaign, with news of a major contribution from BCE and Bell Canada and a report on three very successful "working" dinners for friends of CPRN.

This month's commentary by our President, Judith Maxwell, "Transformations and Visions", discusses the need to discover new "organizing principles" for public policy in the 21st century. She finds clues for what those might entail in the results of CPRN's most recent dialogues with citizens.

To top it all off, you'll find the latest on our new Web site, data on our Web traffic and media mentions, and news of the comings and goings of CPRN staff.

A good read indeed!
