CPRN RCRPP Fresh Ideas for Canada's Future

e-network

Fall Edition of NetworkNews Now Out

Friday, October 24, 2003 – The Fall edition of NetworkNews is packed full of stories about recent CPRN research, salted with pictures of CPRN's friends, staff and participants in our events.

We lead with an article on the latest paper from Family Network Research Associate, Neil Bradford, on strategies for building medium-sized cities and communities that work. There are also stories, among others, on new challenges posed by Canada's changing labour markets, on the issues facing those who raise funds for the country's vital non-profit sector, on approaches to evaluating public engagement initiatives, and an assessment of what Ontario needs to do to bring its social policy into line with the way its citizens actually live their lives today.

Our Vice-President of Development, Pamela Miles brings us up to date on the progress of CPRN's Fresh Ideas Campaign – in a nutshell, news of a heartening response coast to coast. And we bid farewell to some long-time CPRN contributors and introduce you to some terrific newcomers.

Cap it all off with our President's Commentary. Judith Maxwell mourns the loss of transparency and accountability in government, and links this to citizens' declining trust in the political process.

See it for yourself – you can access or download a copy of NetworkNews, the Fall edition, by clicking here.