Alive and Kicking: CPRN's Social Cohesion Nexus

September 21, 2001 – A little over a year old, our Social Cohesion Nexus list serve already boasts more than 650 subscribers in 36 countries!

We knew there was tremendous interest in social cohesion when we launched Nexus in July of last year, but the response to this free service has been overwhelming. And it continues to grow.

What is Social Cohesion Nexus?

It's THE site for the latest news of research on social cohesion, as well as news about related research events. Denis Saint-Martin, a CPRN Research Associate at the University of Montreal, reviews the current research and monitors events. Every three weeks he sends out a summary update to subscribers of the list serve.

The Social Cohesion Nexus summaries are posted on the CPRN Web site in both English and French, along with links to authors or publications. The summaries are posted simultaneously on the federal government's Social Cohesion Network Web site.

Past summaries are archived on the CPRN site for a period of six months. If you aren't already a subscriber, take a look and see what you've missed. If you like what you see, sign up to receive the next update on your desktop.
