Rae Report Acknowledges CPRN Research on Post-Secondary Education

Monday, February 7, 2005 – The report of the Ontario Postsecondary Review – the Rae Report – released today, acknowledges the path-breaking work of CPRN on issues of access and excellence in Canada's post-secondary education (PSE) institutions.

In particular, the report refers to a conceptual framework developed by Ross Finnie and Alex Usher for a forthcoming CPRN report on measuring PSE quality.

The Finnie/Usher report will be published this spring. However, a description of the Finnie/Usher framework can be found in a recent presentation by Ron Saunders, Director of CPRN's Work Network, and director of CPRN's series of research papers on PSE.

You can access or download a copy of Saunders' presentation, CPRN's Project on Achieving Access and Excellence in Canada's Post-Secondary Institutions by clicking here.

The Rae Review is helping to fund this research.
